"Cacher of Nobility and Anthro-culture"

"I am an antelope, with an independent will and thus no metemsnarements. These are the words of the most admirable Julia F. Carney. These aren't just words but are strongest weapons discovered till now. Human beings are the most developed organism among the soils of life in the blue continent."

According to me, (a real dream of motherland) the words are the ones who make man noble and unique.

Yeah! the evolution of man states that he has passed through different eras. But the development of modern man hominabilis towards homosapiens with brain size 900 cc to 1400 cc marks the sole of small symptoms of communica-

The evolutionists clearly portrays that his development to the modern sense was accelerated with the discovery of signs and dialects; then to this developed mode as we can see today.

The 'modern era' of human evolution links a word 'success' as inevitable remark of his life. There are many quotes and many inspirational thoughts that are streamed to the human society. He is clear, bright, alert and responsible; I believe and no! I have taught that these are the supreme qualities of a real Indian citizen, rooted in such a securian and supreme culture. These were passed on to me through the media, 'words'.

For me, 'WORDS' are abbreviation of Well, ordered, Bright, Disciplined Signs. While analysing the words of Albert Einstein towards success that we should not value success, but value on creating values; and I've been greatly lifted by the words.

an unknown author, "Education is simply the replacement of a closed mind with an open mind to include values?" I realize that the 'values' mentioned above are simply but greatly the 'words'.

As a responsible dot in 'Future Indian line', I believe that it is my duty to be born in such a splendid, democratic space. I believe in Indian constitution offering 'Direct Principles of State Policies' which mentions the rights and duties of a citizen. If I need to be a 'goal' then I should have minimum standards while valuing my life. I just read the words of my pioneers. These words serve me as responsible mediators who are bound upon duty to transfer the glories of past. Yet my inheritance is not just through genetic material but also through the recorded words of from my ancestors.

These are a noble advice from our Father of Nation, Mahatma Gandhi
"Small words of sincerity and little deeds

of kindness can transfer your world - a dreamplace. Yet, we usually accept the norm that a word uttered from a rough man reveals his truth. In a way, our words are reflections of our own will.

Today I try live in a world where words rule over deeds. I am largely got depressed at the attitudes of my fellow beings to get fame over the society through fake words. But I should think to pull myself out of this deep water that their words are facsimiles of their own personality. These words are the mole gift from my ancestors and thus
has no cupidity and no antisocial feeling on it. So they will prove the truth.

For a man, to adorn the throne of successful, he should have good words.
The clear examples are cited from the present Balotsavam itself that I got stunned at the speech competition held before me. I was unable to believe that these were born from teenagers. I got proved myself at the general saw
of father of malayalam literature,

Shri Thunehatb Ezhuthatchan,

"Good ones search good words
while the culprits search for chaffs
out of rice"

is authentic mark of an enlightened man as concerned by International standards are from his words! This is the reason for setting viva voce before selecting the academically bright ones

I feel proud to establish the fact that good words are the catcher of supreme cultures like India based on etiquette, manners and disciplines. But I can see a disturbing fact that have already revealed through K. Satchidanand that when people stammers, 'stammers' become their mother tongue. The stammer are symbols of fake words.

In the present scenario, we should think the height reached by Indian in earning the 'good standards' of words. In most parts of the country amongst the twenty two official languages and five Indo-European languages our people could gain the standards mentioned above. Especially in rural areas, the illiteracy and usage of uncivilized and unpromotional words prevail strongly.

I believe these are the reasons why we are always neglected by superpowers around the world.

While defining the 'success', we should cope the realization gained by those individuals, which are mere reflections of the language set on him. This cannot be gained by money or physical means so these are the most sincere outputs available in this industrial world.

For our constitution it has been clearly expressed that establishing good attitude to women (and this include the words aiming at) is the duty of citizen.

Words can act as strong tools to express our rights and duties as well. Shakespeare in his novel differentiated Lear the prince from his cruel stepfather from only through the languages set by them. In Julius Caesar, Mark Antony states out the truth regarding the depravity of Brutus. Thus, words are the proofs for right.

The two pronged development strategy put forward by India, development with assistance to needy can be made into truth through citizen adorned with good words. By evicting the sibwan, wimkes from the culture, our land can acquire development that is dreamt of by our forefathers.

A society rooted in good words, being gained and transmitted, that is the knowledge gained through reading and its transfer to the vast outside world can have no corruptions, no harassments to opposite sexes and will do no harm to motherland.

Such a society is not lied in Utopia, it is possible and is required for gaining real success, based in mind.

We should realise that a real posterity do not warns rivals or and should be ready to safeguard his noble cultures.

The gained input is being reflected as his facsimile, in the form of words.
