WORDS MAKE A SUCCESSFUL MAN

The greatest boon to the human kind is the ability to think, to acquire knowledge and implement it according to one's own wish. The importance of communication lies in there. Communication means using words to express one's own ideas and beliefs. Earlier men, ~~were~~ used gestures to communicate with each other, which was not so effective as words. The quality of words is that it enables one to express his ideas effectively.

Words can change the world, a society, or a country. The power of speech and communication is so high that it can alter every walks of society. An example to this is the drama 'Julius Caesar' by William Shakespeare. In this drama, we see how words can change the minds of the people. The speeches delivered by Brutus and Mark Antony could alter the idea of the mob for and against Julius Caesar's death. Words are like swords. It can pierce into the heart of people, alter the notions and make changes in the whole universe.

How does words make a successful man? Imagine that you are in front of an interview board. Even if you are well educated and has the potential, what matters the most in there is your speaking skill. Speaking out your mind is equally important as acquiring knowledge. It is of no use, possessing knowledge and unable to speak up.

The inspiring speeches and words can be helpful in producing a vital man. The politicians and leaders, whom we come across possess this vital character. The most important example is that of Mahatma Gandhi. He used his skill in unifying many, towards the independence of our country. He proclaimed satya and ahimsa, as his tools, and attracted the minds of Indians, like magnet. He was powerful and dared to respond effectively towards the brutal rule of the exotic powers.

Speech is an important quality, with which we can soar high and also fall deep into the ditches of failure. Thus, speaking skills are important for the progress of a person. We can succeed in life in many ways. It can be through making money, by murdering others, or by doing virtuous things. But, everyone should possess speaking skills, above everything.

Speaking skills are to be acquired from childhood itself. The most important factor for gaining it is self-confidence. We should be confident in our skills. Comparing ourselves with others can only deteriorate our ability. The next thing is making use of opportunities. In the present world of globalisation, everything is mechanised. So, what we should do is to make our own stand in this world. There also, the ability to speak is of immense importance. Our education systems are inadequate in inculcating this ability in students. ^{However,} ~~Still,~~ we should strive to acquire it in life, because words are the weapons which can determine one's life, and future.

Words can change our life, not only through the speaking skills. It can also elevate our personality through writings. Words are like flowers in a garden. If flowers bloom, it can spread fragrance all around. But if it wilts, it can't spread its beauty and it goes into dust. Likewise, if words are used to bloom one's abilities, it can bring success to our life. But if the same words are ^{chosen} used to wilt, i.e., if they are not used properly, it can only bring failures, and also we may remain unknown unacknowledged by anyone.

The successful authors and poets have made good use of words in their writings. They have used words to speak out their mind and give useful messages to the world. Words can bring goodness in the society. It results in the success of people, who make good use of it. The great leader Martin Luther King Jr. was a good speaker. He used words to propagate goodness in society.

Words can also mislead the society. We ~~are~~ all know about Goebelian Propaganda. If a lie is repeated several times to make it feel true, the society will automatically accept it as the truth. Goebelian was successful in implementing his lies in society and making the people feel that it was the truth. Words can have such an effect also in the society. There comes the importance of interpretation of words.

Words are the good weapons of modern society. Words can lead to wars. But, its effect on individual level is to be considered. Words can make a man succeed in life. When deeds associate with words, words and deeds, together can build a new world, with virtues. So, use words for the empowerment, success and achievement of one's goals.
