NEW HORIZONS ARE THERE IN THOSE DREAMS..!!

"The woods are lovely dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
Miles to go before I sleep and Miles to go before I sleep "

- Jawaharlal Nehru

Youth, being a country's most powerful resource, under and over the earth can make tremendous contribution to the progress and regress of a nation. As a largely populated country, ^{India} ranks ~~the~~ second with 1.1 crore of its citizens of which 60% are youth. Therefore, India possess a larger scope for a rapid development in all its spheres. Being a developing country, India has to have a precise wisdom in moulding its citizens. For better growth and development, India should be very conscious of its youth icons. Many of them have made India pride in several occasions. Manushi Chellar was one of them who brought back the beauty crown back to India after 17 years. Our youth scientist Dr. Thasneem made us proud by discovering the "silicon" star. Politicians like Aravind Kejriwal, cricketers like Virat Kohli, musicians like A.R. Rahman etc gave their own contributions to Mother India. The achievements of PV Sindhu, Saina Nehwal etc were appreciable.

Another pride moment for India was the mars mission "Mangalyan" which was launched as a result of committed hardwork of the ISRO scientists. Former RBI Governor Raghuram Rajan too brought revolutions in Indian economy. But still, many are the conflicts and traps persisting in our society. Righteous education and inculcation will lead to India's progress, while misleading causes a decline. We have to be very aware of those traps and everything persisting in our society and act accordingly. Or else, we would miss all those fantasies we are awaiting for.

Dr. APJ AbdulKalam was one of the people, who worked for youth empowerment. According to him, today's children constituted tomorrow's India, and that was literally true too... One day our children should rise and have the reign of our country within their hands. For this, they have to be self reliant, confident, courageous, optimistic and enthusiastic. As we all know, crime rate in India is on a rapid rise. It involves accidents, sex abuses, riots, terrorism, cyber bullying, alcoholism and addiction etc.

Recent newsreports seems horrible as they are widely spreading these crime reports. Many of the youth are not aware of obeying the traffic rules. They are still finding the loop holes in law for a chance to escape. This possess a great threat to the society as we are losing many a lives due to this. India government is very conscious of providing quality education to the youths today, through various programmes. RSA stands as one of the examples for it. Alcoholism and drug abuse in early age has become a headache ^{to} both ~~to~~ the parents and ~~to~~ the society. Due to this, youth loses ^{their} consciousness along with the concentration in studies. In this era of infoexplosion, education gains its own importance. But many of the families get shattered due to the alcoholism ^{that has affected} ~~of their~~ earning member. Rehabilitation becomes much ^{more} difficult when those involved are the youth. Unemployment and poverty leads them to pursue a wrong path and they do become criminals of tomorrow.

Deterioration of social values and principles has become a common sight today. Everyone has shrunk to themselves. This is to be avoided. The recent reports show that due to the advent in technology, cybercrimes are also on a tremendous increase. This has become too worse due to the uncontrolled use of Internet and other social medias. Everyone has something precious today and they are their "mobile phones." Digitalisation has become a boon as well as a bane for India. Many of the youth in India are addicted to video games.

Recent shocking issue was that a guy named "Jinson Raja" who was addicted to videogames killed his mom and sister so brutally. It is an important issue on which we have to think of further. Blue whale, the killer whale clutched its icy hands on the Indian youth, just because of our carelessness. All these issues clearly points out that, changes are yet to be made.

India need good politicians, good leaders, wise economists, nice musicians, artists, writers, good entrepreneurs and everything for its latter progress. Nice film makers too are indeed for a good nation. Because as Salman Rushdie said; "The bedrock of any good society is freedom of expression and rule of law. If you don't have them; you don't have a free country." Youth of India should be ready to accept its diversities. He should learn to respect other cultures, religions and their customs. It is not fair to fight on religious issues over here. It's time for a wise thinking and a powerful action. India, dooming to its darkest fate has to emerge out of it. The religious conflicts prevailing overhere has to suppressed. The economy shattered due to demonisation of currency on 8th November 2016 has to be re-established. Youth have to be provided with new entrepreneurship opportunities, quality education; along with sex education. They have to learn to treat women with the utmost honour and respect they deserve. For this sex education is relevant in the present day society. For the prevention of cyber crimes, healthy laws have to imposed on its usage. For road safety, we have to inculcate better values and principles in our younger generation. And thus, there are yet changes to be happen.

This changes has to root out ~~all~~ the inhibiting factors on the development of youth. Both psychologically and physiologically, our government has to give due importance for their issues. It's not because that India do not have enough resource, but they are not used accordingly that we are still just being developing. The population ratio shows that majority comprises of the citizens between 18-35. we have to build up new revolution in all its spheres. Many of the youth, who are denied of their basic rights should have an access to it. Failure of this mechanism leads youth to join terrorist agencies. Recent reports show that many of the Indians too are involved in ISIS, Al Qaeda etc. What a fate!! For emerging out of all these, we have to ensure the basic facilities that are required by them. Their dreams are of those burning suns. They have the enormous power for upliftment of the nation within them. Along with technological development, personal development should also be given due importance.

many of the countries are clearly utilising their available human resources and are leaping towards progress. we should also adopt those healthy measures and implement them successfully. many such schemes are already implemented by our government, but their efficiency is still doubtful. All personal, financial support has to be provided properly. For escaping from alcoholism, youth has to realise that life itself is happiness and nothing is worth more than that. India needs physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight citizens for its future. And it is our duty to improve our living conditions and form a better India without losing its diversity and the splendour. Many are the challenges and risks to be faced, but still many are the advantages waiting too. We have to rise occasionally for India's development both culturally and technologically. And all this becomes possible through the empowerment of youth today. Because their dreams bear the sharpness in them and it can build the platform for a changing society. Dreams are transformed to thoughts and later to just actions. In order to maintain the peace and justice within our country, our youth should be equipped for reasonalised thinking and valuing performance. Then only, India can ~~be the~~ remain as the sovereign, socialist secularist democratic republic. It is through better understanding from life and experience, we move on. Immense care should ~~be~~ taken while handling these issues. In the modern era, good things has to be absorbed and bad ^{ones} are to be defecated. We have to realise the strength of our youth and also their weakness. Then, we have to empower these strength in them. Let us hope for a marginal change in India's future through the incredible Indian youth, a change really to be observed.
