TECHNOLOGY

Technology has revolutionized our lives completely today we cannot think of living without a television, mobile phones and the latest addition' our addiction to the internet. The wise internet has everything in it, what one wants to know. It not only provides connectivity with others but it is Store house of knowledge, music, and entertainment. The blog is the later Invention where anyone can voice his opinion and vent out frustration the e-mail gives us an opportunity to send letters in a jiffy; the SMS conned' people within seconds no longer does one have to wait for the postman! Deliver letters neither does one have the patience to wait in this fast moving world. Pick up your phones and talk to your relatives and friends any where any time in the world. The web camera enables you to do video conferencing such is the power of the internet and mobiles' in connecting us.

Though connectivity has increased where the feelings have gone? Wtr has happened to our relationships? After all, the experience of talking on the phone does not have the same personal feelings as talking to a person face to face. The warm embrace which can console people in distress can not be replaced by a mere SMS or chatting, on line.

We are a world, where people are lonely, sad and unhappy because the emotional needs are not being satisfied in spite of such remarkable connectivity. We can share opinions/views but the lack of personal touch the feeling of closeness, eye contact, warmth cannot be compensated.

As matter of fact, because we have the power of connecting, we feel we have lone our duty and do not make an effort to meet friends and relatives personally. This creates a vacuum, a gap in relationships. It also makes us me in a false world which encourages pretence. We start leading a life of, sham and fail to touch hearts which is so important for our happiness and mental satisfaction.

Had it not been for this gadget Man would have made efforts in socializing and meeting people, but science has messed it up and taken away from us this joy of life. We have become mere machines and machines do not have potions. Hence we are leading lives, bereft of emotion and feelings. Thank Lou Science' for making us 'Robots'!

COMPUTER

Computer is a machine that accepts data as input, processes that data using programs, and outputs the processed data as information. Many computers can store and retrieve information using hard drives. Computers can be connected together to form networks, allowing connected computers to communicate with each other.

The two principal characteristics of a computer are: It responds to a specific instruction set in a well-defined manner and it can execute a prerecorded list of instructions call a program. There are four main processing steps in a computer: inputting, storage, out putting and processing.

Modern computers can do billions of calculations in a second. Being able to calculate many times per second allows modern computers to multitask, which means they can do many different tasks at the same time. Computers do many different jobs where automation is useful. Some examples are controlling traffic lights ,vehicles, computers, security systems, washing machine and digital televisions.

Computers can be designed to do almost anything with information. Computers are used to control large and small machines which in the past were controlled by humans. Most people have used a personal computer in their home or at work. They are used for things such as calculation, listening to music, reading the news, writing etc.

Modern computers are electronic computer. They do mathematical arithmetic very quickly but computers do not really "think". They only follow the instructions in their software programs. software uses the hardware when the user gives it instructions, and gives useful output.

Humans control computers with user interface. Input devices include keyboards computer mice, buttons, and touch screen. Some computers can also be controlled with voice commands, hand gestures or even brain signals through electrodes implanted in the brain or along nerves

Child Labour

Child labour is a term you might have heard about in news or movies. It refers to a crime where children are forced to work from a very early age. It is like expecting kids to perform responsibilities like working and fending for themselves. There are certain policies which have put restrictions and limitations on children working. The average age for a child to be appropriate to work is considered fifteen years and more. Children falling below this age limit won't be allowed to indulge in any type of work forcefully. Why is that so? Because child labour takes away the kids opportunity of having a normal childhood, a proper education, and physical and mental well-being. In some countries, it is illegal but still, it's a far way from being completely eradicated.

Causes of Child Labour

Child Labour happens due to a number of reasons. While some of the reasons may be common in some countries, there are some reasons which are specific in particular areas and regions. When we look at what is causing child labour, we will be able to fight it better.

Firstly, it happens in countries that have a lot of poverty and unemployment. When the families won't have enough earning, they put the children of the family to work so they can have enough money to survive. Similarly, if the adults of the family are unemployed, the younger ones have to work in their place.

Moreover, when people do not have access to the education they will ultimately put their children to work. The uneducated only care about a short term result which is why they put children to work so they can survive their present.

Furthermore, the money-saving attitude of various industries is a major cause of child labour. They hire children because they pay them lesser for the same work as an adult. As children work more than adults and also at fewer wages, they prefer children. They can easily influence and manipulate them. They only see their profit and this is why they engage children in factories.

Eradication of Child Labour

If we wish to eradicate child labour, we need to formulate some very effective solutions which will save our children. It will also enhance the future of any country dealing with these social issues.

To begin with, one can create a number of unions that solely work to prevent child labour. It should help the children indulging in this work and punishing those who make them do it.

Furthermore, we need to keep the parents in the loop so as to teach them the importance of education. If we make education free and the people aware, we will be able to educate more and more children who won't have to do child labour. Moreover, making people aware of the harmful consequences of child labour is a must.

In addition, family control measures must also be taken. This will reduce the family's burden so when you have lesser mouths to feed, the parents will be enough to work for them, instead of the children. In fact, every family must be promised a minimum income by the government to survive. In short, the government and people must come together. Employment opportunities must be given to people in abundance so they can earn their livelihood instead of putting their kids to work. The children are the future of our country; we cannot expect them to maintain the economic conditions
