

THE DUALITY

There are times when I just want to lay in my couch and there are times when I want to dance the night away,

While life appears so bright and purposeful,
It also feels like as if it's all just a play.

There are times when I want to understand, and there are times when I just ignore.
While the greed in me always takes, the kindness only wants to give more.

There are times when I want to sing, and there are times when I stay shut.
While I want to appear alluring and coy, I'm also daring enough to silence all but's.

There are times when I feel so alive and at times just so empty
When I am tired with all those why's and don't's My mouth yearns to reply all witty

There are times when I want nothing but the truth and sometimes to just believe all the lies While my body wishes to stay on the ground
My soul, it just wants to fly

There are times when I want to be nothing and there are times when I want to just exist While my mind tells me to give up,
My heart tells me to persist

There are times when I just listen, and there are times when I like to write, While the future holds so many questions
The memories of the past make me blithe

There are times when I want to ignore and there are times when I accept While a meek voice inside me tells me to move on, my mind just gives me reasons to regret.

There are times when I stand up for myself and at times I breakdown like a storm.
When my thoughts torture me sometimes I relieve from writing them down as a poem.

There are times when I want to realize the reality,
and at times to just drown in my imagination While I appear to others as crazy
My loved ones keep up with patience.

There are times when I am so bold and sometimes my trauma's bring me down.
At times, there's a part of me that wants to stay which sometimes wishes to leave this town.

There are times when I want to wander the forests and at times I want to feel the ocean breeze While I'm stuck in this prison of time, I ask myself How long will it take to realize I'm free?

There are times when I want to love and there are times when I want to hate.
This humanity that comes in a line of duality, for we alone, my love, get to choose our fate.
