

WHEN I WAS ON THE MOUNTAINS

Opening my eyes despite the throbbing pain
my thoughts hault to glance at the silhouette of the dimming sky.

The ecstatic view orchestrated with wonders,
fills my heart enlightening it with a trivial hope.

Brooding over the heavenly place I was standing upon,
I am met with an epiphany, I was on the mountains.
captivating my soul with its invincible enigma,
I surrender before its massive yet ethereal arms.

My keen pair of eyes catches hold of the beautifully sewn nature,
with its rhapsodies of laughter and tristful soliloquy.
I see the magnificent world lit beneath,
each colour holding within a thousand splendid tales!

with the tranquil breeze caging my feeble figure,

I drift to the frivolous flutter of the leaves beside .
The soothing redolence of the blissful flowers,
gushes through awakening the shattered fragments in me.

why do I suddenly hear the cries of sorrow?
why does the hailstorm of unknown tears fall by?
was I witnessing the breakdown of few people down there?
were they pouring their soul out?

Disrupted by the echoes of few laughs,
I look at the confusing other side .
My soul is engulfed by exhilarated smiles beneath applause and cheers, unravelling happiness!

Another strange sight catches my attention,
And I see yet another herd of emotions.
They were busy shielding the traitorous storm,
with a courage that was extremely impeccable.

Ripples of delight and droplets of fret,
clouds of complains and rays of hope.
This world was a labyrinth of emotions,
with hidden wonders that none can fathom.

A wave of realization flows across me,
vanishing my rules and triggering my sorrows.
I was just a speck of stardust that floats about,
with my obstacles being one among the many.

Why do I care about my air of melancholy
when the whole world is of undulating strokes?
Hidden within, is the vestige of resilience
forces to clasp and bounce back with pride.

I am awakened from my thoughts and it was a dream,
the ebullient mountains and the ablazing light.
This world is an epitome of wavering feelings,
an ineffable size, the ultimate tutor!