

My Heart Still Beats

Needs that fed all those days are the beads that shine on me

Shadows of those dark days Flicked through my mind

Through the quilt filled roads of life through the lonely paths once filled with love Solitary I stood with broken heart.

Across the scarred remains of my heart that bet the agony of trapped soul

Beyond the soul that screamed to be set free
From the turmoil of war and hatred

Ignoring the haunting figures of my past I still ploughed forward, as far as my weakly legs took me.

To the figure that is not shadowed in darkness!

Happiness and peace,
which I titled it - love.

The love has truth,

But the truth,

who has no feelings for sure broke it down.

How cruel you have to be?

To mistreat your bosom pal

To discolour my cosmos.

A tiny, but permanent place in you, was all I asked!

~ Few steps away
 A bench for two I sat in one leaving the other alone.
 From now, forever.

T'was a mistake by me the reason for late consciousness I discouraged my presence between you my dear and your dear Not that I feared sadness but loved your happiness.

A thud in womb, was all I felt
 "No my dear, Not here Without he guardian, to the world of beasts".

A compunctious deed struck my mind.
 It not that ~~thud~~ tickle I felt there'll be no more thud ever!

"Where's pa, ma?"
 To those twinkling eyes silence was my answer

Oh! baby pie,
 I just want you to be happy
 But sometimes
 And selfishly
 "I" want to be your happiness
 For your smile is my smile
 And your laugh is my laugh
 You are a GEM!
 And I dont wanna lose it!

For every tunnel has to end in light and a rainbow follows every rainy day.
Eventhough am a vessel tossed up in the stormy sea, sinking down to its watery grave,

I'll be with you forever and ever
I believe I will survive
For I have hope and my heart still beats!
