THE BIG AND SMALL

There lived a mouse at the foot of a big mountain. Everyday the mountain saw with pity, the small creature running here and there. One day as the mouse emerged from his hole, the mountain said, "You poor creature! How small you are!" The mouse replied "What is the problem with my size? The mountain said, "See how big winds and clouds. They kneel before me "He added "Big things have big advantages. The little mouse said humbly, "Yes, I agree you are big but, can you stop me from drilling holes on your right and left. The mountain was ashamed at his pride.

Rain

When the fresh showers the earth
The whole world becomes authentic
The flower dance with the wind
The trees enjoy it's colonies
Children play with paper boats
The rhythm of rain moves the violin strings
To the whole world
Let's thank nature for the excellent gift

Alone! Alone! Alone

Sometimes I am alone in
My sweet home
I feel lonely; always
My brother has gone away from me
To full fill his dreams
My father
My mother
They are also away from me

Distance is short
But loneliness is long

When the sun is ready to set,
My mother comes to me
With her smiling face
Sometimes with chocolates
And lost of kisses
When I am alone throughout the day
Loneliness has a lot of friends
The wind, the rain, the sky
The clouds, the trees, and the birds.
