

Painfull Happiness

There once laid a small village in Kolkata named Dhamanpur. In the village there was a beautiful school which consisted children from lower economical background to upper economical background.

In the fifth standard there was a boy who was very rich and had well background named Rohit. His father was a well known business man and his mother was a teacher. He had a best friend named Tarun who was very poor and he was an orphan. Tarun in his childhood worked in a nearby restaurant as a parttime labourer. Eventhough Tarun was very poor he ~~doesn't~~ didn't express his feelings to Rohit.

One day during the class time Rohit asked Tarun "Will you come to my house for this coming weekend?" At first when Tarun heard this question he was very happy but when ~~the~~ he thought deeply he refused as he ~~didn't~~ didn't having anything else to wear other than his uniform. Though Jarun and Rohit was thick friends. Rohit's parents didn't like the relationship between them, but Rohit does not give ears to the words of his parents.

The next day Jarun heard one of his mate asking Rohit. "Why are you ~~maintain~~ maintaining friendship with Jarun? He is an orphan!" Suddenly Rohit shouted at him and asked "So what? I am there for him. He also have several relatives!" When Jarun heard these he felt very sad, but when Rohit noticed that Jarun heard all the discussion, he told him "Why are you feeling sad? I am there for you! You don't worry! You shall give them the answer for their questions through ~~st~~ your studies!" From that moment onwards he took a strong ~~dis~~ decision to give ~~them~~ his friends the answer to their question through his studies. When the days passed he maintained well.

excellence in his studies and in his work too. After few days when Rohit went for a wedding function he became shocked, as he noticed Jarun in his ~~the~~ untidy uniform. All others participated in the wedding function was well dressed other than Jarun. But Jarun didn't come to know that Rohit had watched him.

The next working day ~~the~~ Rohit asked Jarun "Did you participate for the wedding function in Ghola Nagar?" Suddenly Jarun said "No!". Such an answer was sure for Rohit that he didn't have a tidy dress. On a weekend Rohit went on searching for Jarun's home. On his way he noticed Jarun ~~studying~~ sitting in front of a restaurant <sup>and studying</sup>. Suddenly Rohit asked "Why are you sitting here and studying?". With a hopeless face Jarun asked "Why ~~are~~ <sup>are</sup> you here?". Rohit replied "I came here to see your home and your surroundings." with a lot of pain Tarun said "then you can have a look round here [pointing the restaurant]!". Shockingly Rohit asked "This restaurant!". Suddenly Tarun replied "I have not told you all these as I don't want you to be sad thinking of me.

Actually I am ~~an orphan~~ a parttime labourer in this restaurant and I don't have a house.
My house and my food, all are this restaurant!" telling all these words Tarun's heart broke up into a pool of water. Rohit hugged Tarun with compassion and told him that "I am sure your excellency in studies will hold you to heights. Now onwards you shall share your emotions with me as I am there with you life long." Tarun told Rohit hearing this "I want ~~should not~~ to show my excellency towards the society through my studies." Before Rohit returned to his house he gave him a pack covered with newspaper. Suddenly, Tarun asked "What's this?" Rohit replied, "A token of love!"

When he moved off the newspaper, he recognized that it was none other than some dresses.
When Tarun saw it, he felt very happy and hugged him and <sup>happily</sup> said, "This is my first gift. I am very happy for this."

When years passed, he was awarded with new gifts day to day as he maintained his excellency in studies throughout his life. Tarun became an IAS officer.
Rohit became a business man, he went through the path of his father. Both Tarun and Rohit maintained their thick relationship till the end of their life.

Behind every success there will be a painful story.
