

Does Diversity unite or Divide?

We all love India and have a strong attachment to this ancient land. India is a country that is rich in culture and prosperity. And it is known for embracing diversity in togetherness. So, in this essay we are discussing about the mind grabbing question "Does Diversity unite or Divide?".

In my opinion, diversity was considered as something that was used as a key factor to poison the peace loving minds of Indian citizens. In the earlier decades the people who belong to caste discrimination was existed. And I believe still though. Though India is well know for unity in diversity. I think there are things that should be eliminated from our Nation.

Is Diversity a boon?

It is, because in one country we are having different cultures.

Diversity is really a boon. If the people are ready to accept and love each other.

I dream of an India where ~~each~~ each individual will have a strong value system. Where no one is chased away because of his/her caste or creed. Almost in every walks of life we face discrimination it can be because of our colour, religion, gender etc...

Discriminations

Discrimination is something our freedom fighters have struggled to erase from our country. But it still remains. Why? Voice this out! There are various types of discriminations.

* Caste discrimination - It is certainly shameful to see how people are denied their rights just because of their caste. Thankfully, certain social groups work hard to put down caste discrimination and provide people equal rights as they deserve.

* Gender discrimination - Although the world is still made up of men and women, women don't have the equal opportunities as men. In India, education and freedom scenario is regressive. The girl child is not provided with opportunities as that of the boy child. Doesn't they deserve it?

* Racism - I do believe in India, racism co-exist. I don't understand why black people are bad and white people are good. people are being exploited due to their colour. people with dark complexion are being neglected

From all the above reasons we can understand that diversity has merits as well as demerits. In the recent years, a change is developing. people began to think and ~~think~~ ^{has} ~~have~~ to be. But still, we have a long way to go. people think those who are in their religion, their caste and in linguistic groups are the best. All the others are useless and they have the power to dominate and exploit the others. And these exploitation exist in every field mostly in educational field. A student who is from a small village came to study in a university in a big urbanised town. Certainly she will be ragged by the seniors and friends. And will be exploited even by teachers. Because they are not ready to accept them as they are. And they think they they consider themselves to be in the high positions of the society. These people don't allow the growth of people in backward classes castes.

Our leaders like Gandhiji, Jawaharlal Nehru and Rabindranath Tagore always promoted the backward classes. They worked on the concept of universal brotherhood. Tagore opened schools to promote universal brotherhood. They all struggled to see Indian people in harmony and peace.

India of my dream

I dream of an where the complete meaning of unity in diversity co-exist.

I dream of an India where there is no discrimination. Everyone has equal rights. ~~nobody is~~ Where each individual will have a strong value system. Everyone will have his/her role in the government directly as well as indirectly.

Does Diversity Divide?

As said, unity in diversity ~~is~~ diversity is achieved when people cope up with each other. Diversity creates a difference ~~is~~ among the people. Some of the people think the people in another community is not brilliant, nor creative and as if they don't have any power. people consider themselves as the best without ~~caring for each other~~ respecting one another. It is priority to give him/her a chance irrespective of caste, creed, religion, gender etc... The people are being judged ^{because of} by their caste, religion and gender.

The way forward

We should dream and work together for our Nation's growth. For that employment opportunities should be provided irrespective of caste, religion, creed.

It should be given according to the excellence of an individual. Everyone should get access to education irrespective of any kind of discrimination. Why there is a column for writing caste is provided in our school diary? Many students ~~are who are belong~~ to students who belong to backward classes are being tortured. We should set a limit to this. Caste system must be eliminated from every aspects of our lives. We all are humans, we all breath the same air, Blood is something that flows through each one of us. We are the children of mother India. There is no Hindu, no Christian neither Muslim in front of God. We all belong to the ancient land of ours. All we ~~have in~~ can
