Shadows of memories

As our present fades into the past,

Experiences become our memories,

Some of them slowly fade away,

While others stay vivid always.

When we are lost in the labyrinth of life,

Something, somewhere pulls us down,

Into the darkness, away from the light,

The shadows of our memories,

Good memories, they stay in our hearts,

Filled with joy, nostalgia and with love,

They fill us with tranquility, happiness, serenity,

Incandescent, effervescent yet bittersweet.

Bad memories also stay imprinted in our hearts

Filled with guilt, regret and tragedy,

Memories of scuffles and of defeats,

Memories that we push away into the growing dark.

Bad memories, they creep with silence, darkness,

They stay hidden and buried deep within,

But some day, some night, when alone, afraid.

A sudden nightmare attacks the mind.

Memories, they haunt and track us along,

But memories are past and forever lost,

We yearn to experience them just one more time,

Alas, they are lost forever in the oblivion of time.

So push forward always, never step back,

Though it might seem tempting to stop the fight,

But it is our duty to finish the game,

The seemingly endless game of life.

We must not live in our memories,

But instead, learn from our memories

Because yesterday's history and tomorrow's a mystery,

But today is God's gift so it is known as present.

Forget the past and brace yourselves for tomorrow,

But focus on today because it is present,

Otherwise you might be trapped ~~in~~ ^{for} eternity,

In the culling chains of ~~the~~ the shadows of memories.
