Problems faced by farmers in Kerala

India, a country largely depend on Agriculture, faces a multitude challenges in this sector. In indian economy, especially this farmers in Kerala face numerous challenges that affect their livelihoods and productivity. These farmers range from natural disasters to socio economic issues.

In Kerala the farmers biggest challenge is the unpredictable weather, low quality seeds, poor irrigation facilities, socio economic issues etc. The socio economic issues make farming tough because if the less knowledge about modern farming techniques and many farmers in Kerala do not having access to proper irrigation facilities affecting their crop yield. And we all know many younger people from farming families migrate to urban areas in search of better opportunities because of these problems and market instability. Because farmers often face price fluctuations and uncertainty in the market, making it challenging to plan and invest in their crops. The other biggest problem that faced by farmers was attack from wild animals is a serious concern for many farmers around the world. To prevent these we make use of guard animals, and fencing etc...

Addressing these problems requires comprehensive policy interventions including climate resilient farming practices accessible credit systems technologies training programmes and fair pricing mechanisms. By taking these challenges we can secure the future of farming in Kerala or India and ensure the prosperity of its farmer.

The Clever Crab

A long time ago there lived a heron by the side of a pond. It was old and found it difficult to hunt for fish and crabs. One day, the heron got an idea. It went to the side of the pond with a sad face and did not try to hunt for fish. The fish asked the heron, "Why are you so sad?" The heron replied, "Abs! I went to an astrologer and took some fish in its beak, and on reaching a large rock ate up the fish. In this way, it was able to get a continuous supply of fish without any effort. A crab that also lived in the same pond became curious. One day, the crab decided to go with the heron. When it got closer to the rock, it realised that the heron had been eating fish. Angrily, it tightened its claws around the neck of the heron and killed it. The crab crept back to the pond and told all the fish about the lies the heron had been telling.

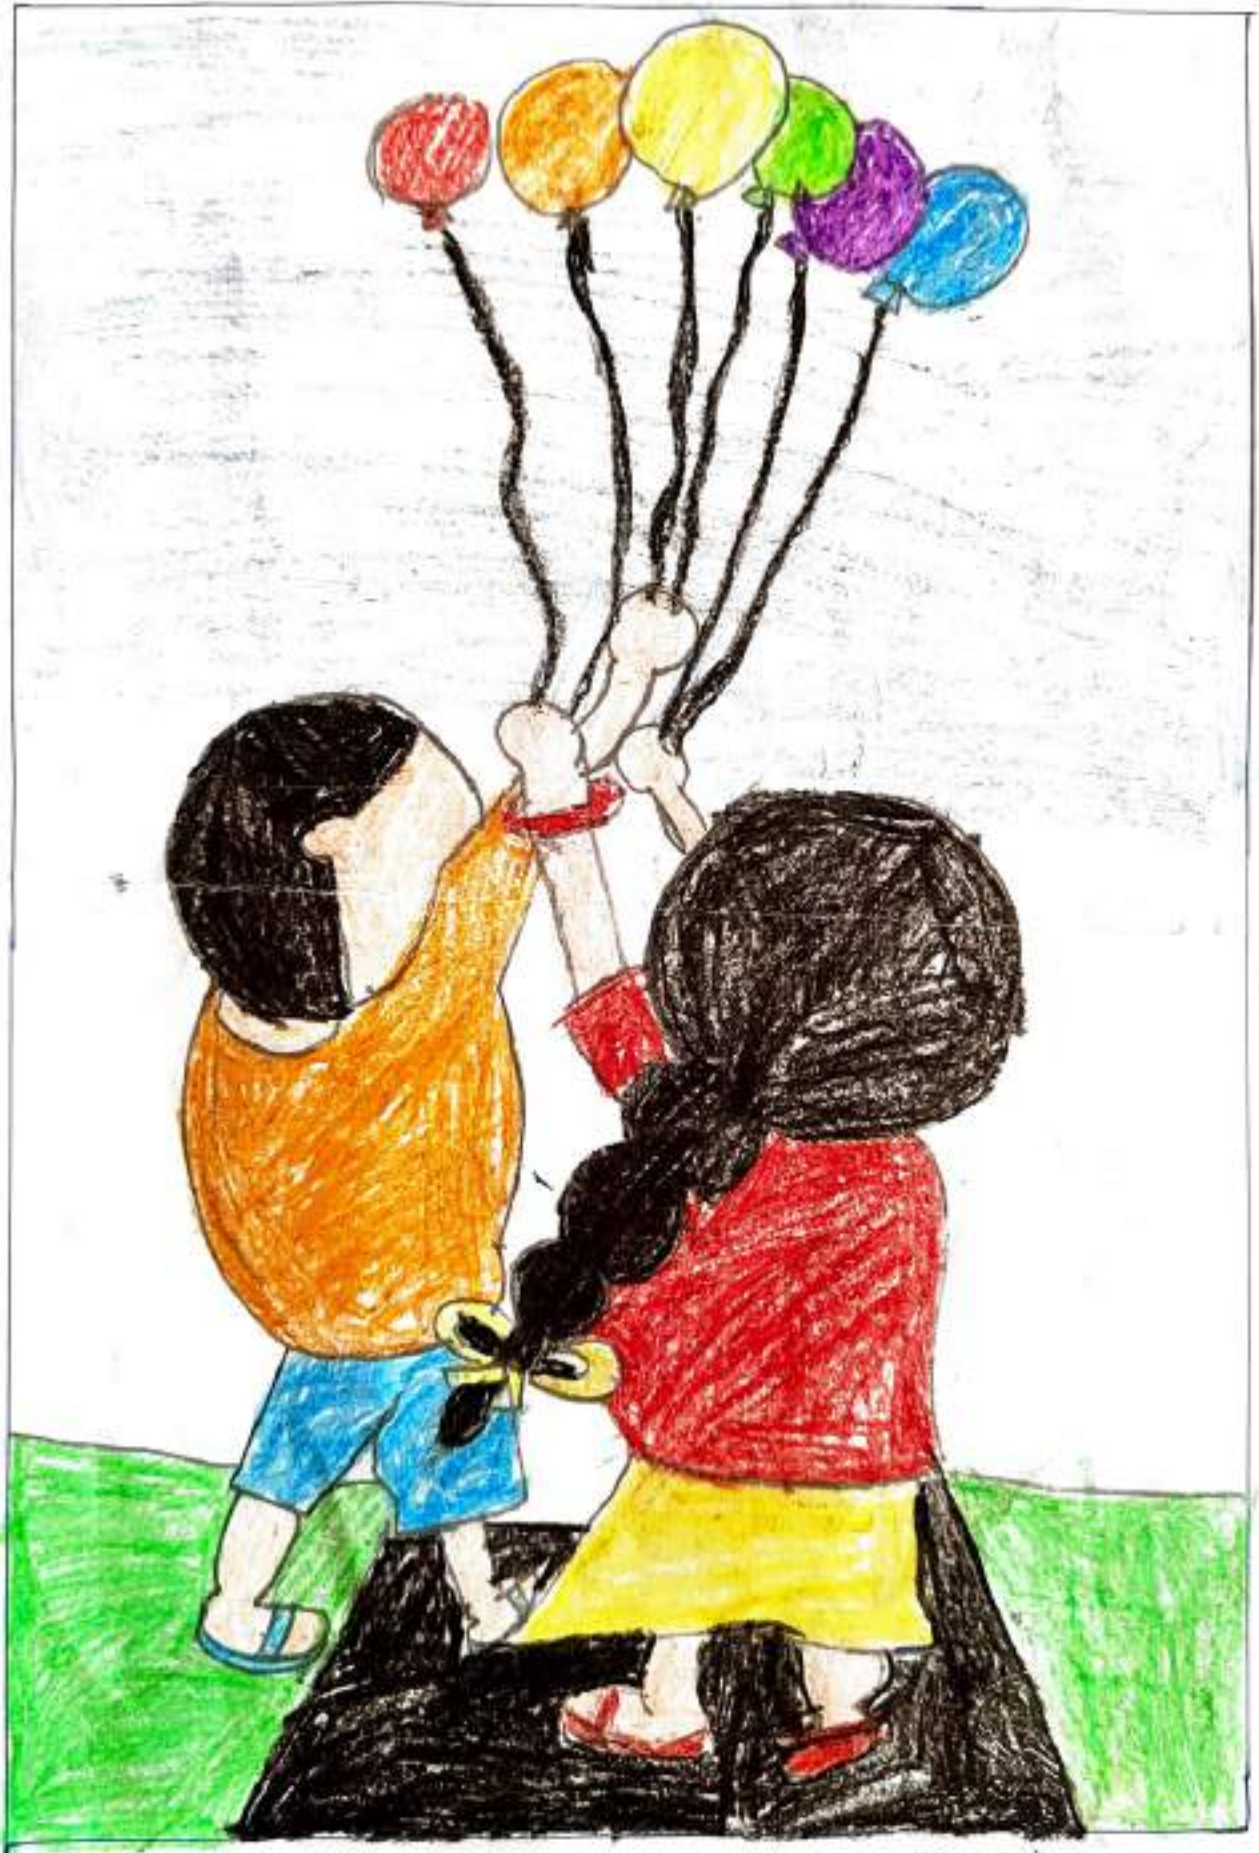

Moral: The hunter can never be protected.

A wild goat lived in valley with a river, meadows and vines. One day a hunter came across it. He went after it with his bow. The goat saw it and ran for its life. He stepped back. The goat's fear disappeared when he realized that he was safe inside the vines. His kithapari. He began to bite off the leaves of the vine that sheltered him. One by one. The hunter noticed the rustling of the vines. He realized that the goat was hidden under the creeper. And the hunter did not stay. He shot the arrow at the vallippa farp. The arrow went to the goat's neck. It died there.

In the middle of a village there was a big and beautiful banyan tree. A boy named Manu, lived in that village. He was very fond of the banyan tree. Manu used to play under that tree with his friends everyday from evening till night. Manu loved that tree like his own life.

One day two woodcutters went near that tree. At that time Manu and his friends were playing under the banyan tree. One of the woodcutter said to the other woodcutter: "Friend, look at this tree. Isn't it a good tree? Let's cut it." "I agree with you and let's cut this one. They both picked up their axes. Manu ran to them and said: "Do not cut this tree. This tree provides shade to villagers and home to birds. Not only this tree, but all trees give us life air, fruits, flowers, wood and fuel. Trees cause rain. Trees are precious gifts of nature. Do not destroy this gift. Hearing this, the two woodcutter's head fell. Then the applause of the friends rose from behind.

Toyo, the husky

"Oh gosh, I'm so hungry"

The Japanese adventure lover 'Dejah Tomaki' was walking in the streets which was covered in snow. She was about to take the oatmeal cookies from her bag but stopped cause she suddenly heard a puppy's cry. Being an animal lover, she couldn't stop herself but go to the place where the sound came from. The only thing she could see was an old Toyota car.

The voice was coming from under the car. She crawled underneath the car just to find a scared 1 month old husky. Since he was being violent at first she gave him the oatmeal cookies she had.

Then she took it home and gave him a bath. She named him 'Toyo' because she found him under a Toyota. She went to fishing with him, played with him and took great care of him. 4 months passed.

They were sitting at the top of Dejah's treehouse and were looking at the vistas. She spotted a grown-up husky was wandering near the Toyota car where she found Toyo. The grown up husky checked everywhere as if she was trying to find something. Dejah instantly knew that it might be Toyo's mother. She told him to come with her and they went towards that grown up husky.

Togo, The husky

She quickly went to Togo and smelled him. She happily starts wagging her tail knowing her missing son is now in front of her. Togo also felt a connection towards her. So it didn't take long for him to realize that it was his mother. Both started showing affection to each other and the mother slowly started leading him to their new home. Dejah was sad seeing her best friend go, but also happy that now Togo is safe with his mother.

2 weeks passed. Dejah was walking towards the small kitchen area to cook food, but she heard a dog barking, she went to outside and to her surprise, it was Togo. He was biting a big leaf, there was something inside it. He placed it on the ground and she picked it up, there were fresh fish inside!

"Perfect timing, Togo, I was about to cook!"

Dejah ran to the kitchen and cooked it. She came back and shared it with Togo. After the meal, Togo returned to his home. He began to visit her more often.
