

Worlds Within Us

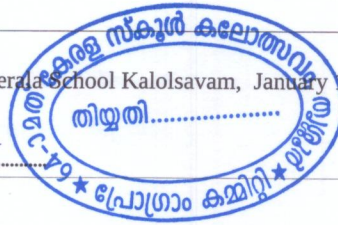

Words unspoken about to burst,
an explosion of chaos and silent screams.
shifting emotions stuck like a curse, yet nothin presented as it is...

Bleeding through these broken shards, tryna stop the clock from tickin.
memories crashin like stacked up cards,
all that's seen, a happy soul.

Terrified of what's yet to come,
anxiety's grip tightens the mind.
when all that lingers, a thread of hope.

One body and one soul,
camouflages grief and thorns.
like the fate of leaves in fall,
just surviving through it all.

Ambivalence tangled in predative vines, waiting to be devoured whole.
Inherited dreams passed through blood and veins, trapped in ^{an} unending trance, sole.

Birds trapped in open cage,
a mere fool, laughing stock.
Freedom seems too good a tale, pain a broken wings seem to mock!

Universe seems to be mundane, until all those unearthly ^{spheres} ~~spaces~~ appear - seems like you're worth the fight, until you see what you're up against.

No one gets each others world,
cause all they know are pretty tales.
All those burns and hidden scars swirl,
like a hurricane in the chest.

Broken promises, forgotten bonds,
feels like forever, still hits you hard.
nightmares creep in in different fonts,
part of daily routine now.

All we share, just a joke, swam ocean depths, no one saw.
defining, reshaping, who you are,
forgiving sorrow hiding within our world...

Releasing each part of a whole, world's within us define us all.
empty vessels flowing with life,
as it's purpose comes to life...

Pure purpose thrives a heart,
to beat harder for what lies beyond.
to not forget the past,
cherishing every burning wound...
