THE VISION FOR A NEW INDIA

India is a great nation that has always amused the world numerous times. Centuries before India was an underdeveloped country with full of poverty, unemployment, and slavery. But by the thoughtful actions of many leaders and activists, the people of India stick together for her freedom and worked with a single mind. From being an underdeveloped nation, India became a developing nation and is still on the mission to its progress. Still India is facing a lot of challenges, it is high time that we need new visions for a new India.

As we know that our country was enslaved to foreign powers for many years. Both the British rule and the social discriminations put the common people under pressure. Untouchability, caste system, discriminations based on gender, race, religion existed. Eminent leaders like Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, B.R. Ambedkar, etc. worked for the liberalisation and upliftment of India in different ways. Post independence period was crucial in the forward journey of India. Dr. B.R. Ambedkar said that we cannot blame anyone because our nation is now in our hands. Our hands should decide the destiny of our nation. India's first prime-minister Jawaharlal Nehru played a vital role in the upbringing of India after independence. Nehru without any doubt knew that only true education can bring changes to the status of the people of India.

Just like Nelson Mandela's quoting that Education is the most powerful weapon that can use to change the world, Nehru used this to shape India. With the help of many leaders, scientist and technicians, he constructed many educational institutions like Indian Institute of Technology, ISRO and many other educational institutions. Gradually Indians became access to good education and spread across the world. Advancement in the field of science, technology, data science, medicine, law and order made our nation's way far ahead. India became one of the strongest powers in the world by producing nuclear weapons and sending satellites and rockets. Our nation gained a place among global powers by the end of 20th century. Now we could say with proud that our nation is an inevitable power in the global economy.

Recent studies and datas show that India will become the most populous country in the world. At this scenario, a question will arise: "Is India economically, and democratically stable to hold that position?". This question is highly relevant as our country is facing a lot of challenges; Increase in unemployment, corruption, expanding webs of drug mafias, terrorism, communal disputes, and many more. Technology may exceed over humanity.

The new generation is deviating from the path of values and morals. Children are forgetting their culture and country. A recent trend seen among the youth is that they wish to leave India and settle in foreign countries like Germany, USA, Canada, UK. Why is this happening? If we dig into the reasons it is understood that our India is not travelling through the right path. On one hand many leaders, educationists, activists and common people are trying for the progress of our nation while on the other hand leaders and politicians commit corruptions, school and college students are trapped under drugs and immoral activities, people started losing their faith in democracy and justice, increasing crimes etc. It is a sad truth that a society consists of mixed, different kinds of people. But it is not at all good to sit back and watch our nation's degradation.

"If there is a will, there is a way". The youth of India should have a strong will and desire to pave our nation on the right path. As mentioned earlier our nation is in our hands. Dr. A.P.J. Abdul kalam once said that the ignited minds of the youth is the best resource available for the construction of a New India. Importance of youth in building a new India is inevitable. Children are the wealth of a nation. If guided and educated properly these children could do amazing changes in the progress of our nation. Greta Tunberg, the environmentalist, Ryan, a kid who leads the construction of wells in Africa are a few examples of child magicians.

The vision for a new India is an India where no one is discriminated, every citizen should benefited from justice, Politicians and national leaders should be educated, Women empowerment should meet its highest, no one is illiterate, a beautiful destination for tourists, a complete turning against drugs, a powerful economic power and at last but not the least a safe home for our next generations and coming generations.

The vision for a new India is not just one but many. It may be possible to say the visions but the real task is to make it practical. One may find it impossible but it is actually possible. Many things that we are experiencing today was once somebody's impossibles. Education is the foundation upon which any change can be build. It could break the shackles of exclusion and could unite a whole nation. Intelligence plus character is the main goal of education. A system which practices bookish education should be avoided instead we should focus on a system which builds a strong character, a sense of values and morals, aware about our earth and the consequences of its damage, helps in the real life incidents. We should love our country and its diversities. Fifty percent of our population consists of women. But the role of Women in economical growth is far less than men. If the gender disparity could be reduced, then it will increase the percapita income of our nation. Thereby the growth rate can be increased. Women empowerment is another ingredient for the making of new India. "Maybe we cannot do great things but we can do small things by great love" said Mother Teresa, the angel of mercy. Just like her, every growing child must have a vision. Parents should guide their children in the right way. If one has dreamt about a new India, half of the battle has won. By combining and filtering the visions of the millions of youth of India, a new India is reborn!
