Topic : War happens when language fails
Let the Dove's speak

"There is no flag large enough to cover the shame of killing innocent people." This quote is by the famous American historian Howard Zinn. It's so relevant nowadays as the Ukraine and Russian war complete One thousand forty eight days. We should check ourselves that why are we still not successful in sweeping away the goblin, war!

The root causes of war are said to be belief, politics, economy. But more than these a 'war' happens when 'language' fails, the language of human heart, 'humanity'. Every single child in India are brought up saying 'All Indians are my brothers and sisters' which indirectly imparts that every human is our own blood. And we live and thrive in the knot which connect us. The modern man, binomially 'Homo sapiens sapiens', who are manifesting their talents in technology in fact is killing the most precious emotion in themselves, love. There is a saying that 'everything starts healing when you stop feeling' But is that the ultimate solution of everything? Love is a language as well as a dialect also. It can make us or break us.

There is no my country or your country unless we live under the same sky and in the same galaxy. The creator of the universe, or the universe itself haven't set any boundaries though. No matter where we go irrespective of our colour and origin mother Earth never rejects us. The human beings even after getting the perfect lessons from their mother are still failed in speaking the language of mind.

The greed and ego of the political leaders who rules the country and who were supposed to lead the country to peace and growth have been always a root of wars and conflicts. After a war between two countries one country will win and the other one will be defeated. But to be honest, there is no war which can be said a success. After losing ^{even} a single life in a war, how can some one claim that they won the war. People should learn to see things with their heart not only ^{with} their eyes.

The ultimate result of wars due to the blinded hearts of man are adversely affecting our mother nature. The chemical substances and radiations as a result of wars are ruining the environment. The mother who only knows to love us, who taught us the chapters of love and care are mourning because she thinks that she failed in teaching her kids the dialect of heart.

The 21st century aren't even able to understand the plight of earth as maybe they're failed to respond to these. A human heart consist of four chambers these chamers holds our all emotions. There is a bible word saying 'It's from the heart that our mouth speaks'. Everything good and bad from us originates there. The anger and competitions also the greed and ego all are the fuels that leads to a burning war.

The conscience and mind should be trained to control each citizen's sins as it is dangerous for tomorrow. Not only sins, the affection, gratefulness, and forgiveness also comes from our heart which make our soul a heaven. 'What is forgiveness?', is a question for us as it is so relevant in this era of deluge of wars. The answer is taught by our mother again. 'Even when a flower is teared, plucked or trodden, it still gives us fragrance that fragrance is forgiveness.' This scent of pure love lies with in ourselves and all we have to do is nurture it.

A newborn makes his or her language perfect by so many lessons, like that the language of heart must be fluent and vivid with all these lessons. As only twenty six alphabets can complete the whole english language, all the good factors makes human's language of heart perfect. The courage and large heartedness of initiating conciliation talks must be imparted to everyone.

Promoting war and exploiting the human feelings based on beliefs through social media are increasing. Effective measures must be taken against all such things. The thought that 'the caste of humanity and religion of love make us one, must be in every citizen. As we enjoy certain rights as a citizen we have certain duties as well towards our country.

A peaceful environment and world can only create a peaceful society for that the society must act wise and right. United Nations Organisation [UNO] is losing its dignity and importance in this cyber century. The organisation should not only create awareness classes but also ^{should} light up their minds and should enlighten their way by impacting their heart.

The dream of a world without ashes and bombs are not far, if we scream the language of unity, always 'we' never 'me'. If this dialect fails we fail too.

The 31st president of Herbert Hoover has said "It's the old people who declare wars and it's the youth who must fight and die". So, change starts within ourselves so that the generation 'Beta' won't be affected by our dark decisions. As the South African president Nelson Mandela says 'The youth of today are the leaders of tomorrow.' So, let's start to communicate with the dialect of affection. We should make ourselves the markets selling the flowers of peace.

The black of smoke is eating the white of peace and prosperity, to preserve and spread the white, everyone must be efficient. Action speaks louder than words hence, along with perfecting the language of love and care, people should work upon it.

Being an Indian, where the great Mahan Das Karamchand Gandhi, Father of our Nation was born. We should believe and continue his way of non violence since he believes it as the most powerful weapon. Before non violence, at the time of non violence and after that there is another medicine 'Smile'. A smile from the bottom of heart celebrates the most prettiest forms of language which can stop a war as well as heal a war and wound.

The children from the primary classes must be taught to sprout a plant of peace and love in themselves. Aristotle, the Greek Philosopher argues that 'Educating the body without educating the mind is no education at all'. This also emphasises the importance of communicating people with sincerity, and advices to include the lessons of life also in textbooks.

Talking with a stranger person, with a little smile and hearing them with patience is watering that person's peace. Opening our ears to listen people can reduce their stress and depression which may lead them to be aggressive. There, our simple deed became a relief to someone. Slowly talking to them and imparting to be patient and to be calm may create that person's inner soul a peace loving one Remember that a little step of us are the giant leaps of humanity.

The dialect of peace doesn't have any boundaries or limit Listen up to the fresh air from North and West do they battle? hear the sound of birds and animals do they fight?, see the dance of flora and fauna do they argue? The world is beautiful with peace, if there is no human today. But we should create a future where the world will be peaceful more with humans. Changing the attitude towards everything makes all the difference Try to learn the language of nature their song is sweet and calm as it comes from her heart.

Listen what the heart says and do that May no child lose it's parents again and let's not be a reason for that. Change others and teach them to speak the language of heart by being an example. May the word 'war' extinct Let's hold our hands and minds and make a rainbow of peace bright, with all beautiful colours, that is ourselves!
