

Uniqueness of Indian Constitution

India, a land of diversity is well-known for its uniqueness of its Constitution. Indian Constitution was not merely the need of the people but also a dream come true for millions who were under the suppressive rule of British. They treated each Indian, as their slave. Great doyens and many leaders came forward to liberate 'India', a land of rich cultural heritage from the hands of the white. From all the initiatives of great leader like our 'Father of our nation', Mahatma Gandhi and many leaders like him, Indians enjoy the fruit of liberation.

Dr. B.R. Ambedkar is the great man behind our unique 'Indian Constitution', the real pride of our nation. It stands unique as it fosters the prominent and true essence of all the the fundamental rights and duties of an Indian citizen. One who enjoys the rights in his society is very much responsible to do his/her duties for the welfare of the society. This basic principle itself stands for the uniqueness of Indian Constitution. Indian Constitution constitutes the fundamental rights such as 'Right to Education', 'Right to Express', 'Right to religion', 'Right to Freedom' etc.

'Right to Education' which is the integral right of every Indian citizen lays the foundation of their life. Education and thereby knowledge are the powerful tools to overcome any trials and tribulations in life. Our Indian Constitution ensure this significant right to every Indian citizen. India is a country where each citizen is free to choose their own religion. Our nation gives equal significance to all religions and also respects religious sentiments of every religious communities.

Our Indian Constitution provides the 'Right to Express'. In olden times, people lacked the confidence to express their views and opinions as they feared many higher officials of the British Government. Each one has their own persp. perspectives. Like 'one can complain that "roses have thorns, but at the same time one can rejoice that the thorns have roses'. There lies the different perspectives of people.

Nowadays, 'the youth' - said as the most powerful resource for future generations by the Missile man of India, Dr A.P.J. Abdul Kalam, express their views about the relevant problems that the nation faces. The man behind the Indian Constitution, Dr B.R. Ambedkar quoted:

"Students of today are the leaders of tomorrow"
Indian Constitution too reflects this vision. It ensures primary education free of cost to all children below 18 years of age, thereby sun. the backward sections of the society will be empowered.

Emanipation of women also stand as an . . .
integral part of the nation's development and . . .
progress. There is a wise African adage which . . .
says: 'If you educate a boy, you train a man. . .
but if you educate a girl, you train a whole village'
The place of women in India is equally important.
This powerful essence too being reflected in the . . .
Indian Constitution since it constitute the . . .
'Right to Freedom', In the the present scenario, . . .
women is empowered and enjoys all her rights . . .
far better than earlier. This mission of 'Women . . .
'Empowerment' was possible through the long- . . .
term dream and planning of the great leaders . . .
of nation. Through their selfless service and . . .
constant hardwork 'Indian Constitution' took . . .
its shape. Indian Constitution is the fruitful . . .
result of sacrifice of many. It is a fact that . . .
Indian Constitution points out the necessities of . . .

every Indian Citizen and also finds out the remedies for myriad of problems. This is the reason why Indian Constitution is unique from others. What people expects is transparency and that is what Indian Constitution provides too.

Each citizen is free to enquire any doubts or clarifications regarding any field as our nation ensures 'The Right to Information Act (2005)'. Such services rendered by our nation can bring up the faith and confidence of the citizens. This also add to the uniqueness of Indian Constitution. On the other hand, it also punishes the violaters and criminals suspected of committing crimes. The uniqueness of Indian Constitution lies how the nation ensures law and order and maintains harmony among people. From all other countries India stands unique of its rich cultural heritage, landscape, religious harmony among people too.

Father of our nation 'Mahatma Gandhi' said,
"India of my dream is a country where there is no untouchability, no discrimination in the name of caste, creed or colour, no difference between rich and poor, men and women equally enjoys their rights, no drug or alcohol abuse but a land where people live in harmony with each other"

Indian Constitution is a perfect example of what Gandhiji expected to see in our country. Indian Constitution constitutes Gandhian principles too, which again adds to the uniqueness of Indian Constitution. There is a saying which goes, 'If you can't be the highway, then just be a trail. If you can't be the sun, then just be a star. It isn't by size, gender, caste that you win or fail. Be the best of whatever you are'

Our Indian Constitution reflects this optimistic approach to life. Since the students of today are the leaders of tomorrow. We need to bring up a generation fostering them to protect the rich cultural heritage and the Indian Constitution which stands unique from others and the pride of each Indian citizen. Each citizen of India is free to enjoy all the rights provided by Indian Constitution, but at the same time they are responsible enough to do their duties in the society.

“Be the change you wish to see in the world”
- Mahatma Gandhi.

It is the sole responsibility of each individual to take some initiative and contribute for the betterment of the nation and for a better tomorrow.
